Invitation to a briefing for journalists, observers and others Rights and Sustainability in Timor-Leste's Development

At La'o Hamutuk, Bebora, Dili

Tuesday, 3 July 2012

10:00 am (sharp) – noon, followed by lunch

The Timor-Leste Non-Governmental Organization La'o Hamutuk has monitored the development of this country since 2000. We research and analyze past and current realities, and future possibilities, in several fundamental sectors. This briefing will present an overview and respond to questions about these topics:

- Timor-Leste is the second-most petroleum-export dependent country on earth, but our oil and gas resources are limited. This determines our State, our economy and our future.
- Timor-Leste has almost no industry and an embryonic private sector, but state spending is growing faster than every country except Zimbabwe. Our “baby boom” is entering school, and we have just taken out our first foreign loans. What does the future hold?
- Current development plans, centered on physical infrastructure, will not provide a sustainable improvement in our people's lives. The unrealistic dreams of the Tasi Mane project rely on the petroleum industry and Greater Sunrise gas, which may never come here.
- Impunity for past crimes, especially those committed as part of the Indonesian occupation, undermines the rule of law today and tomorrow.
- Land is the basis of our culture and lives, and recent events could increase injustice and conflict.

Many of the international journalists and observers coming to Timor-Leste to cover the Parliamentary elections have asked us for interviews, and we will meet individually when requested. In addition, we are offering this briefing to support people who need a quick, deep understanding of Timor-Leste's current reality and future prospects. Non-journalists are welcome to attend.

Some of this material is on La'o Hamutuk's website and blog, including a similar briefing last May (<http://www.laohamutuk.org/econ/briefing/MediaBriefing18May2012En.pdf>). The July briefing will primarily be in English, but we will provide information in Tetum. A map showing the location of our office, which is behind Dili Cathedral on the left side of the main road westward toward Bairro Pite, is at <http://www.laohamutuk.org/images/LHBeboraMap1000.jpg>

Thank you for your interest and participation. Please let us know if you plan to attend.
